Supporting Aim High is one of the best ways you can invest in low-income youth.

Our powerful, tuition-free program makes the most of dedicated educators and Bay Area resources to keep costs low. Consider some of the ways that your contribution - at any level - will help Aim High change lives:

- $50,000-$100,000 underwrites an Aim High site: 100 youth, 25 teachers and volunteers, and a community uplifted by the power of great education.

- $25,000 pays for one skilled math coach to support math teaching at four sites. Aim High's academic program is fun and standards-based, and teachers receive the support and resources they need to significantly impact students' skills.

- $10,000 supplements funding for healthy, nutritious lunches and snacks for the entire Aim High program. Aim High partners with Revolution Foods to provide high-quality lunch service.

- $5,000 pays for one week of bus transportation for 60 Aim High kids to the Headlands Environmental Home in the Tennessee Valley, where Aim High 9th graders learn about ecology and environmental stewardship in our signature week-long outdoor education program.

- $2,000 is the cost for one student to attend Aim High for one summer.

- $1000 pays the stipend of one high school-aged Teaching Assistant. Aim High employs more than 200 talented youth educators each summer, many of whom are graduates of the program.

- $500 buys BART fare for 100 Aim High students to visit UC Berkeley. Aim High's college-bound culture helps propel more than 90% of our graduates into higher education.

- $200 pays a local dance group to provide a workshop for Aim High students. Aim High's program of Cultural Days emphasizes community, diversity, and exploration.

- $50 buys enough notebook paper and pencils for one campus. Aim High's program is totally free to students and families, including tuition, food, and supplies for a full 5 weeks.
